The action now shifts to Fingal and his daughter Ethne trying to plough a small piece of land, with Fingal yoked to the plough as they have no draught animal that can be used instead. They are interrupted by a man in the service of a local ruler whose bride, the widow of his dead brother, has been abducted by Angles.

Gibbs planted Cockleburr Ethne' Church in 2014 (while still pastoring First Pima) in a northern community on the Tohono O'Odham Reservation. His family—including two biological, four adopted, and (currently) three fostered children—reaches out to several communities on the reservation which, by land mass, is the nation's second largest.
